

A few examples of in-house courses that IHRIM has to offer:

IHRIM's Introduction to HR Systems

The Introduction to HR Systems Course has become a cornerstone of IHRIM's reputation for providing world-class education to HRMS professionals looking to jump-start their career skills. Course content for Introduction to HR Systems provides an understanding of the advantages and benefits of using technology effectively to enhance your contributions to organizational effectiveness.

IHRIM's Essentials for Successful Project Management

This one-day course focuses on the skills, tools and techniques that project managers or project team members should know to effectively define, plan and manage projects and project assignments.

HR Metrics for Business Partners - If You Have to Ask You're Not

This seminar will help attendees understand the importance of taking ownership of human performance and HR related metrics in their organizations. As experts in the functional areas of human resource management, business partners who understand HR metrics can move their organizations toward increased organizational effectiveness. At a minimum, individuals that understanding HR metrics can help organizations avoid wasting time and resources developing and distributing metrics data that will have little strategic value.

Learning has No Limits

No need to come to us, we will come to you!

IHRIM in-house courses give your employees the opportunity to attend valuable training courses without the expense of traveling to an off-site location. You will find it may be easier, and more cost effective, for an IHRIM instructor to come to your site and teach these seminars.

Your attendees participate in the same high quality learning experience offered at our public seminars, but with the convenience of being at your location. In addition, the courses can be tailored to your individual organization's needs.

IHRIM educational programs enable your staff to enhance their professional skills and share strategies for managing the ever-changing HR information management environment.

Holding an IHRIM course in-house provides many benefits including:

- Discounted registration fees
- An ideal setting for team-building
- No travel expenses for staff
- Time savings as time away from office to travel to training site is minimized
- IHRIM makes speaker arrangements and provides registration materials
- A price that makes it cost effective to provide training on-site to a group of employees.
- Courses can be scheduled on a date convenient to you
- Most IHRIM courses are approved for credit hours toward PHR and SPHR recertification through the Human Resource Certification Institute (HRCI).
